The applicant must have his or her biometric features recorded within 14 days after the application has been submitted.

The applicant must appear in person to have his or her biometric features (facial photo and fingerprints) recorded for use in the residence card. This must be done within 14 days after the application has been submitted. The processing of the application will only begin when the biometric features have been received by SIRI.

IMPORTANT: The applicant must bring a print of this receipt when the biometric features are to be recorded. We need the applicant's case order ID and application form type in order to match the biometric data with the online application. The applicant must also bring his or her passport or equivalent travel documentation.

In addition to the biometric features, the applicant's signature will also be recorded. The facial photo and fingerprints are stored on a microchip embedded in the residence card issued to the applicant, if the applicant is granted a residence permit.

If the applicant does not agree to have his or her biometric features recorded in connection with the application being submitted, the application will be rejected. However, if the applicant is not physically capable of providing fingerprints, he or she will not be required to do so.

Where can the biometric features be recorded?

Biometric features can be recorded in one of the branch offices of the Danish Agency for International Recruitment and Integration (SIRI). If the applicant lives abroad, biometric features can be recorded at certain Danish diplomatic missions and application centres. A list of places where the applicant can have his or her biometric features recorded is available here

If you wish to use the option for a quick job start, the applicant will have his or her biometric features recorded as part of the meeting at SIRI. Please note that you must book an appointment using the link above.

If you do not wish to use the option for a quick job start, an appointment must be booked through the ordinary booking system before the applicant appears in person in one of SIRI's branch offices. You can book an appointment here
